PAUL FORD MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN

STAR NEXT WEEK at the CAPE PLAYHOUSE in "CRADLE AND ALL"

Paul Ford, who ranks among America's greatest and most beloved actors, will appear with the beautiful Hollywood star, Maureen O'Sullivan, at the Cape Playhouse next week in Sumner Long's riotious new comedy, "Cradle and All." A pre-Broadway showing, the play is about a couple who are having their first baby after 27 years of marriage. Mr. Ford, who is known throughout America as the wonderfully hilarious Colonel Hall, Phil Silver's commanding officer on the Sgt. Bilko television series, has appeared in over 16 hit Broadway plays, the latest being "The Music Man" and "Thurber Carnival." He is currently appearing in the film version of "The Music Man" and "Advise and Consent." One of Hollywood's most celebrated stars, Miss O'Sullivan, has appeared in over 70 pictures. Among the best remembered are "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Anna Karenia," "Pride and Prejudice," and, of course, four famous Tarzan pictures with Johnny Weismuller. Tickets for "Cradle and All" may be reserved or purchased at the box-office during the first intermission of tonight's play, or by calling EVergreen 5-3911.

WHY THEY CHOSE CAPE COD

Mr. R.'s business takes him to all parts of the country, but he eagerly looks forward to his weekends on the Cape.

"Our Windows Frame A Thousand Pictures"

Mr. and Mrs. R. moved to the Cape from New Jersey about two years ago. "The attraction of the Cape had to be very strong to make us pull up stakes and move here while I was still in business, and we had a growing family," says Mr. R.

"What appealed to us was the opportunity to spend the rest of our lives surrounded by so much natural beauty and in an atmosphere with fewer of the pressures of today's living.

"We never tire of our view over the marshes and the Atlantic. We go canoeing even in midwinter and dig clams in our backyard! We are becoming more and more observant of the bird life around us. What else do we do, especially in winter? There is as much community activity here as one can digest, and while we miss our old friends back in Jersey, we have made many new ones in the short time we have been here. We lead a healthier outdoor life, too."

Mr. and Mrs. R. represent one of the many families who have chosen the Cape as a permanent home. Many are still active in business or semi-retired.

Cape towns are beehives of activity during the "off-season" months. The churches, the women's clubs, men's groups, town committees all need interested, active people. There are many cultural opportunities, too, including concerts, lectures and art classes. In fact, there is as much community and social life as one wants to absorb.

Today, there is a wide choice of home sites and homes from which to choose—either in well-planned residential communities or as individual properties. There are older homes which can be remodelled—or brand new ones already to move into.

Why not look into Cape Cod as the place for your home? Write us, giving your preference as to area and family requirements.

Booklet, "A Wonderful Way of Life" sent on request.

Who's Who in the Cast

HENRY MORGAN (Jonas Astorg) was a dishwasher, truck driver, short order cook, long order cook, Congressman and butcher the first year. After that he was in radio and television for years and years. Today he is unemployed.

JOSEPH BOLAND (Mr. Edgerton) has been associated with the theatre for thirty-five years. Born in Cleveland, Ohio, he received his B.S. degree at the College of Wooster in Wooster, Ohio, where he made his stage debut in "The Whole Town's Talking." He made his first Broadway appearance in 1928 as the soldier in a play called "Conflict." Since then he has appeared in numerous New York productions, including 55 weeks in "Goodbye, My Fancy," "The Rope Dancers" with Siobhan McKenna and Art Carney; and "Third Best Sport" with Celeste Holm, which was presented here in 1958 as a pre-Broadway production. In 1961, he toured Europe and the Middle East, under the auspices of the State Department, as a member of the American Reportory Company, which was founded by the Theatre Guild. The company starred Helen Hayes. Television viewers will remember Mr. Boland as Father Knickerbocker on Steve Allen's nightly shows. He also has appeared on major dramatic shows, including Alcoa, Studio One, Kraft Theatre, and many others. He has recently completed a coast-to-coast tour of "Advise and Consent" with Chester Morris and Farley Granger.

MEL ARRIGHI (Sam Ellis) was born in San Francisco, and graduated from the University of California at Berkeley. He has appeared in the national tours of "Auntie Mame," with Sylvia Sidney; and "The Great Sebastians," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. His off-Broadway credits include a list of notable productions, including "Sharon's Grave," with the Irish Players; "The Sign of Jonah," with the Shakespearwrights; and, "Julius Caesar" and "The Taming of the Shrew," both with the New York Shakespeare Festival. He has been seen on television in Route 66, The Ed Sullivan Show, Armstrong Circle Theatre and Kaiser Aluminum Hour. Prominent among his stock appearances is the Ann Arbor, Michigan, production of "Macbeth," with Charlton Heston.

LEONARD CIMINO (Denesco) was last seen on Broadway in "A Passage to India." He also has appeared on the New York stage in "Handful of Fire" and "The Matchmaker." Mr. Cimino has had leading roles in the off-Broadway productions of "Montserrat," "Vincent," and "The Brothers Karamazov," for which he won the coveted Obie Award. His numerous television appearances include roles in "Power and the Glory," "Don Quixote," Naked City, Armstrong Circle Theatre, Play of the Week, and others.

NANCY PINKERTON (Cass Edgerton) was born in Omaha, Nebraska, and made her first stage appearance there in the title role of "The Reluctant Debutante." She subsequently was asked to join the resident company of the Cleveland Playhouse, and, from 1957 to 1960, appeared with that group in over a dozen productions, most significantly as Anne in "The Diary of Anne Frank." While there, she also received the Max Eisenstadt Memorial Grant as the playhouse's most outstanding actress. In addition to Cleveland, she also has appeared in stock at Chautauqua, New York; Culver, Indiana; and at the Starlight Theatre in Pawling, New York. Miss Pinkerton is probably most familiar to audiences for her role of Patte, on Search For Tomorrow.
